With this object, in August, 1874, he concected a most nefarious scheme for intimidating a man named YEUNG AMOW, and wringing from Her engines have been converted from common him some of his hard-carned money. Amow possessed property both in Hongkong and Swatow, as well as family houses at Macao and Choy Hung. His brothers, Apo, living when a speed of eight and a half knots was ob at Swatow, and Apar, living at Macao, were also-marked-out for extortion, and the former was cast into prison by the mandarins at Swatow on the frivolous pretext that he had built his houses too high. In order to get a hold over Amow, the prisoner LEE LUM Kwar sought to trump up a charge of murder mencing at half-past eight o'clock. No charge against the brothers, and he took-steps to so intimidate Amow that he would consent to pay a heavy black mail to be relieved of the charge, for which there was not the smallest foundation. The three brothers were well known as men of character and standing. their only trime being that they were rich and could not be equeezed. In pursuance of his equally daring and dastardly design, LEE Lum Kwai, who had received the button of a small mandarin from the Chinese Authorities and gathered audacity from the fact probably (deeming himself safe from British law as a Chinese official), laid his case before a solicitor of this Colony, seeking legal advice. When the writer speaks, for instance, of the company rendering great service to Russian finances by bringing gold from St. Petersburg and Berlin, he trusts a and others, at the Imperial Palace, on the occa- little too implicitly to the ignorance and credulity of his readers. The real explanation of the incident is this .- According to the contract the ON CALCUTTA. As the Russian paper is always much lower in Roumania than in Russis, they buy gold not in Bucharest, but in St fond of high life and court fashions; but we Petersburg. In this it is difficult to discover the supposed patriotism. The thing is simply a commercial operation, by which the company tainments, all the notables are depicted as in full makes a very considerable profit. Here, as in uniform of foreign design, and with cocked hats, many other parts of the document, the company apologist, with all his sharpness, has made mistake. He has endeavoured to prove too much. The company had unquestionably, as I learn from independent cources, enormous difficulties to encounter. In the course of a few days it had Suchmen could not fail to come at once into contact with the Roumanian anthorities. Accustomed to derive a considerable part of their revenues from smuggling and other methods of defrauding the Government, they no doubt used their position as agents of the company to do a little business on their own account.

Then there were the difficulties of transport. The Roumanian railways were insufficient to transport even the troops, and the provisions had to be transported in peasants' carts. For some time after the Army crossed the frontier unusually heavy rains made the soft roads quite impracticable; and when the fine weather came the majority of the peasants went home for the harvest, taking their carts and horses with them. In Bulgaria the difficulties increased. The strategists often changed > cally impossible to execute. As the sphere of operations extended, the delays in receiving payment from the Government increased. During the first five months the firm expended 25 millions of roubles and received only 16 millions in payment, because no money was paid till the receipts and other documents were verified by the central Commissariat Bureau. This delay naturally produced financial distress, and the to travelling trader. company was compelled to employ a large number of smaller companies, composed of not very respectable Jewish traders. These little companies unquestionably swindled to a considerable fat Hong to local trader extent, but whether they did so for -their own benefit, or for the big company, or for to travelling trader. both, I know not. At the same time the company met with a formidable obstacle in another. quarter. Many of the Commissariat officers systematically refused to accept the provisions offered until a certain percentage had been paid to them for their own private use. So, at least, I have heard from many independent sources, and I have little difficulty in believing it. because, even in time of peace, these gentlemen do not enjoy a good reputation. Unless they are very grossly maligned, they have a regular tariff which all army furnishers must pay, and which is, of course, eventually paid by the Treasury. The 10 per cent commission received by the company was, of course, insufficient to meet this illegal demand, and consequently an extra legal profit had to be obtained. Thus it was almost impossible for the company to be honest, however much it had wished to be. Under the old system, in which there was practically no control, all this would have remained officially unknown; but now the General Control Administration examines the accounts of the Commissariat. Very soon the Controllers found that and the Controller-General, Mr. Greig, has now cone to the Danube, to examine the matter on the spot. As yet nothing is known here about several rich landed proprietors have undertaken, from patriotic motives, to furnish large quantities of grain and bisouits at prices much below what is paid to the company, and already, I am told, two trains are despatched daily, one by Bessarabis and Ungheni, and the other by Redzi rilof and Galicia. It is only fair to add that the company cannot Weather use all the means of defence at its disposal, be-
